

Cressey & Company

Building Leading Healthcare Businesses

Cressey & Company LP Announces Sale of Assistive Technology Group, Inc.

CHICAGO, IL – January 13, 2011 – Cressey & Company LP, a leading private equity investment firm focused on building healthcare services businesses, today announced it has successfully sold Assistive Technology Group, Inc. to Audax Group, a Boston-based private investment firm.

Established in 1999, Assistive Technology Group is a national supplier of complex rehabilitation equipment and assistive technologies with 26 offices servicing 19 states. Assistive Technology Group provides mobility and seating solutions including power wheelchairs, manual and lightweight wheelchairs, adaptive seating, standing and positioning frames, specialty ambulatory and bath aids, and related rehabilitative rental equipment.

About Cressey & Company

Cressey & Company (www.cresseyco.com) is a private investment firm with more than 30 years of experience building leading healthcare businesses. Recognized for pioneering the "buy and build" strategy, Cressey & Company identifies high-potential healthcare industry segments and then partners with exceptional executives to build leading healthcare services businesses. Together with its most recent fund, Cressey & Company Fund IV LP, the Cressey & Company team manages in excess of $1 billion of capital committed to building growing healthcare companies in partnership with outstanding executives and management teams. Cressey & Company has offices in Chicago and Nashville.